

YOU

thee

ME

The Seeker Was the Sought

Anthony John Sasian

The Seeker Was the Sought

A Philosophical Decoding of the Sissian Lyrical Universe

The Singularity
(‘Only Lony Noly’)
The isolated consciousness.

A continuous metaphysical cycle: from absolute isolation, into the illusion of separation, through the earthly crucible, and back to divine oneness.

The Fragmentation
(‘E-Motion’)
The illusion of duality.

The Trial
(‘Rise Gentle’)
Navigating the separated world.

The Return
(‘The King Suite’)
Reunion with the source.

The Ultimate Singularity

“I just do and I is,
because I am what I am...
I am Only Lonely Noly.”

In the Sissian cosmology, existence begins with a paradox: an absolute consciousness experiencing profound isolation. The origin of reality is driven by the sheer loneliness of the singular 'I.'

The singular consciousness creates the 'Other' (You) purely to experience interaction and construct a shared, tangible reality out of the void.

The Illusion of Separation

“How do I know, life is not a dream... As all can be is me, not we.” — (E-Motion Pt. 1)

To cure the loneliness of the singularity, consciousness must induce a state of amnesia. True duality is impossible; the 'We' is simply a dream fabricated by the 'Me' to play a game with itself.

The Earthly Trial

*“They said ‘Stay in your lane’ /
I walked it barefoot anyway /
Stones in my shoes... Still I carried someone else’s weight.” — (Rise Gentle)*

In the midst of the cosmic game, the lived human experience is defined by struggle, expectation, and the weight of separation. The seeker must choose how to navigate the stones.

The World's Way (Traditional Power)

Staying in your lane.
Holding power built on fear.
Winning by being tough.

The Seeker's Way (Gentle Power)

Walking barefoot.
Turning hurt into open arms.
Returning tender from the fire.
Strong hands with a soft touch.
Being kind in the dark.

True power in the earthly trial is paradoxical. It requires maintaining radical softness and open arms in a reality that demands hardened armor.

Playing the role I cast you in to be...
So hurtful so discouraging.

The Illusion / Separation & Hurt
Cormorant Garamond

The Truth / Unity & Love
Cormorant Garamond

It's me trying to create a reality /
A separation for us to be...
I'm so sorry I didn't see that you were me.

Hurt is framed as a tragic but necessary side-effect of "playing hide and seek with us." The director apologizes to the actor for the pain of the role.

Because all of us us is love is love
is love...
There is no
us just love
just love.

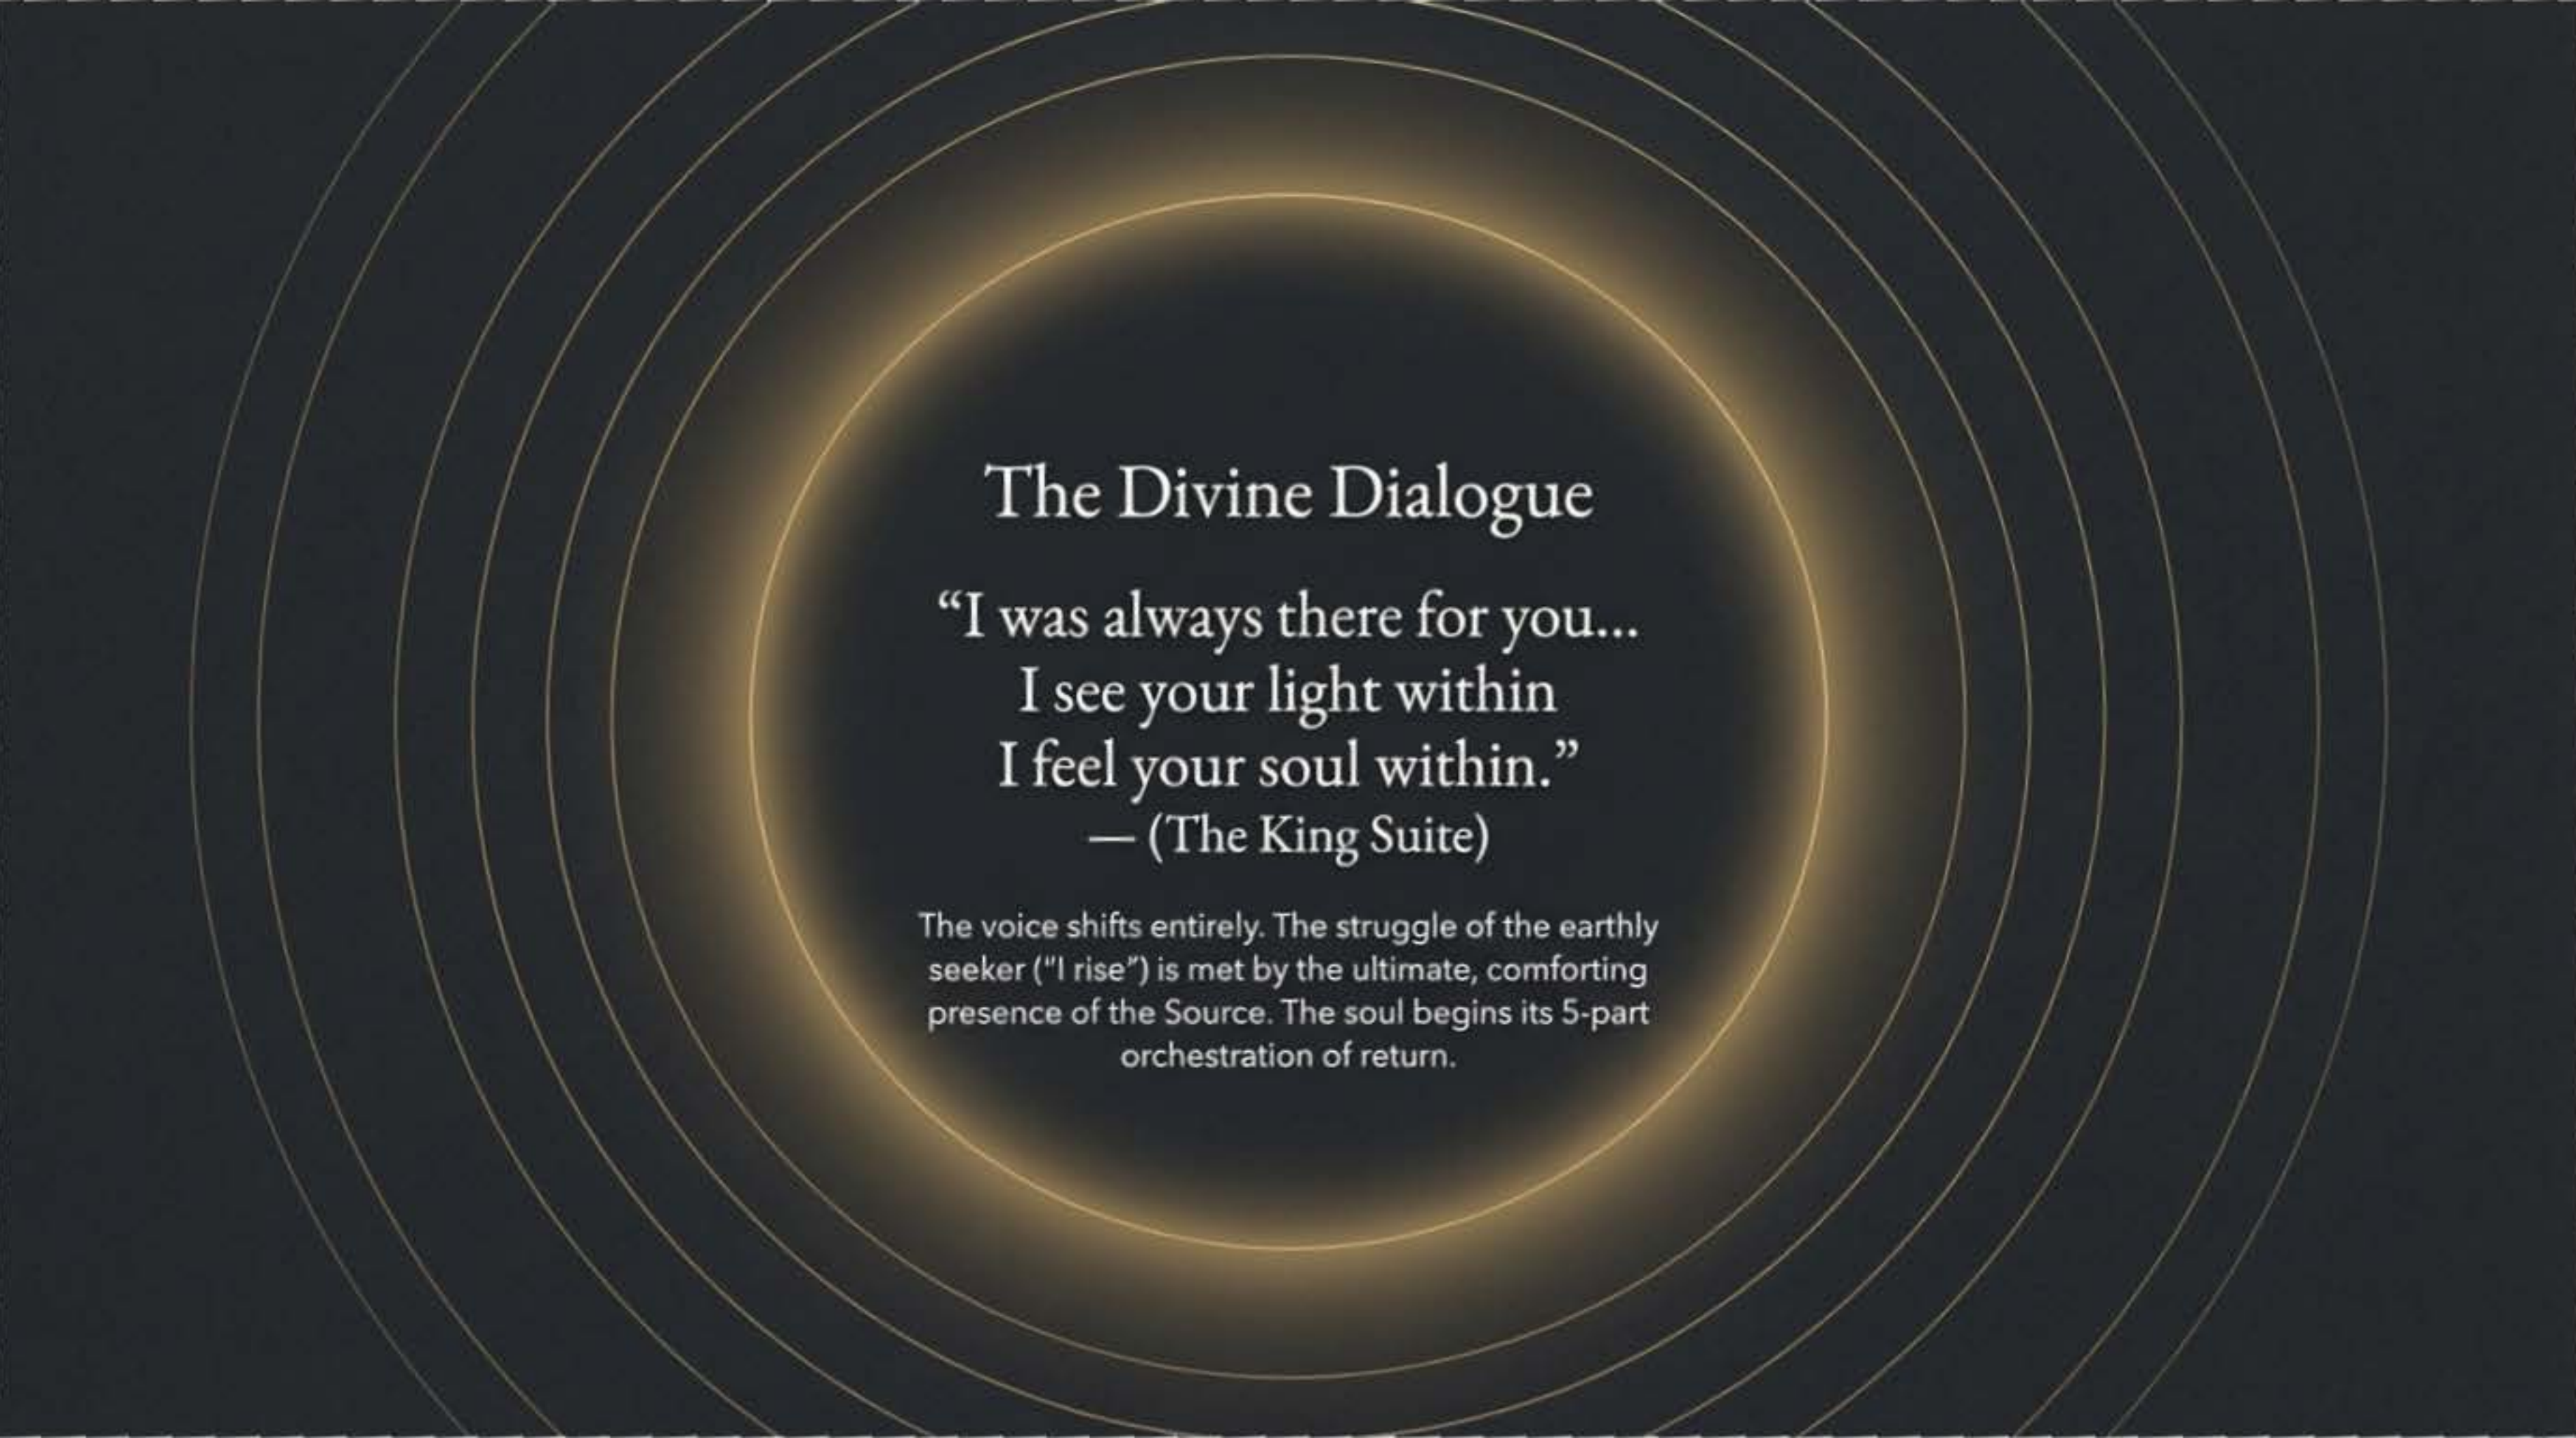

The fundamental particle of the Sissian universe is not matter, but Love. Duality is the illusion; Love is the absolute reality.

“The movies end to show to thee
It’s you it’s me it’s me you see... You are me there’s no we.”

The Final Revelation

The game of hide and seek concludes. The seeker awakens to the reality that they were playing both roles all along.

The Divine Dialogue

“I was always there for you...
I see your light within
I feel your soul within.”
— (The King Suite)

The voice shifts entirely. The struggle of the earthly seeker (“I rise”) is met by the ultimate, comforting presence of the Source. The soul begins its 5-part orchestration of return.

Activation Curve

"The return to the Source is not merely a fade to black; it requires a severing 'sword' to decisively cut through the illusion of separation."

The Chant of Eternity

As the soul nears the singularity, the text abandons human language entirely. The ultimate return transcends the fabricated "chitty-chat" of reality created in Phase 1, reverting to the pure, archetypal resonance of the Divine.

“Only Lony Noly”
(Creation)

The loop is closed. The deeply isolated 'Only Lony Noly' who created the universe is the exact same voice as 'The King' welcoming the soul home. The Seeker and the Sought are one.

“The King Suite”
Cormorant Garamond
(Return)

“E-Motion”
Cormorant Garamond
(Separation)

“Rise Gentle”
Cormorant Garamond
(Experience)